

The parcel is comprised of an arable and pastoral field network. This is typical of the prevailing landscape character in the area.

The M50 is the primary transport corridor in the area and is present along the northern boundary of the parcel. The A417 is also present but is detached from this parcel. The unnamed road present along the western boundary provides access to the parcel.

Hedgerow and trees are common features within the parcel and form the boundaries to fields. Hedgerow field boundaries are characteristic of the local landscape.

Development within the parcel is focused around Park Farm and is comprised of a small number of dwellings and farm buildings.

Public footpaths are present within the parcel. there is good access to the parcel from east to west. Views are generally limited to the parcel due to intervening features. Some more distant views are achieved between gaps in vegetation. This includes views of elevated landform to the north.

Topography changes create local variation. This creates areas of shallow valley with areas of elevated land form also present. Character wise this creates a varied rural landscape. These elevated areas would be subject to heightened landscape sensitivity.

Flood Zone 2 and 3 areas are present within the parcel. The identified Flood Zone is located alongside the low lying Glynch Brook. These areas play an important role in flood management and form part of the local Green Infrastructure network.
